Religious Education Policy

St. Mary's Catholic Primary Voluntary Academy Religious Education Policy

As a Rights Respecting School we respect the dignity and worth of every child. We believe that children have the right to choose their own religion and beliefs and that they should be helped to decide what is right and wrong and what is best for them.

Mission Statement: We joyfully live, love and learn in the footsteps of Jesus.

Aims and Objectives

Religious Education enables children to investigate and reflect on some of the most fundamental questions asked by people. At our school, we develop the children's knowledge and understanding of their own faith and the major world faiths; we address the fundamental questions in life, for example, the meaning of life and the existence of a divine spirit. We enable children to develop a sound knowledge - not only of Christianity but also of other world religions, especially those that are the main faiths of children within our school. Children reflect on what it means to have a faith and to develop their own spiritual knowledge and understanding. We help the children learn from religions as well as about religions.

The aims of Religious Education at St Mary's are to help children:

- develop a deeper understanding of Catholicism
- develop an awareness of spiritual and moral issues in life experiences
- develop knowledge and understanding of Christianity and other major world religions and value systems found in Britain
- develop an understanding of what it means to be committed to a religious faith
- be able to reflect on their own experiences and to develop a personal response to the fundamental questions of life
- develop an understanding of religious traditions and to appreciate the cultural differences in Britain today
- develop investigative and research skills and to enable them to make reasoned judgements about religious issues
- have respect for other peoples' views and to celebrate the diversity in society

The Legal Position of Religious Education

Our school curriculum for Religious Education meets the requirements of the 1988 Education Reform Act (ERA). The ERA stipulates that Religious Education is compulsory for all children, including those in the Reception class who are less than five years old. The ERA allows parents to withdraw their child from Religious Education classes if they so wish, although this should only be done after the parents have given written notice to the school governors. The ERA also allows teachers to refuse to teach Religious Education, but only after they have given due notice of their intention to the school governors. The Religious Education curriculum forms an important part of our school's spiritual, moral and social teaching. It also promotes education for citizenship. Our school RE curriculum is based on the Come and See Programme and it meets all the requirements of the Nottingham Diocesan Age-Related Expectations. The ERA states that the RE syllabus should reflect the fact that the religious traditions in Great Britain are in the main Christian and that it should, at the same time, take account of the teachings and practices of other major religions. We spend 10% of the curriculum teaching time on Religious Education in accordance with the Bishop's Conference.

Teaching and Learning Styles

We base our teaching and learning styles in RE on the key principle that good teaching in RE allows children both to learn about religious traditions and to reflect on what the religious ideas and concepts mean to them. Our teaching enables children to extend their own sense of values and promotes their spiritual growth and development. We encourage children to think about their own views and values in relation to the themes and topics studied in the RE curriculum.

Our teaching and learning styles in RE enable children to build on their own experiences and extend their knowledge and understanding of religious traditions. We use their experiences at Christian religious festivals, celebrations and Masses such as Easter, Advent, etc. to develop their religious thinking. We organise visits to local places of worship and invite representatives of local religious groups to come into school and talk to the children.

Children carry out research into religious topics. They study particular religious faiths and also compare the religious views of different faith groups on topics such as rites of passage or festivals. Children discuss religious and moral issues individually and in groups.

We recognise the fact that all classes in our school have children of widely differing abilities, and so we provide suitable learning opportunities for all children by matching the challenge of the task to the ability of the child. We achieve this in a variety of ways, for example, by:

- setting common tasks which are open-ended and can have a variety of responses
- using a variety of visual, auditory and kinaesthetic learning styles
- setting tasks of increasing challenge
- providing sign-posts and scaffolding to support the child
- using classroom assistants to support the work of individuals or groups of children according to need.

Curriculum Planning in Religious Education

Our 'Come and See' RE scheme is used in the majority of RE lessons. All staff receive the training necessary to plan and teach lessons and assess work using this scheme. The topics studied in Religious Education build upon prior learning. We offer opportunities for children of all abilities to develop their skills and knowledge in each unit, and we ensure that the planned progression built into the scheme of work offers the children an increasing challenge as they move through the school.

We carry out the curriculum planning in Religious Education in three phases (long-term, medium-term and short-term). The long-term plan maps the Religious Education topics studied in each term during each key stage.

Our medium-term plans give details of the three 'Come and See' units of work for each term. Each topic lasts approximately four weeks and two world faiths, Judaism and another religion, are also studied for two weeks of the year.

Contribution of Religious Education to the Teaching of Other Subjects:

English

Religious Education contributes significantly to the teaching of English in our school by actively promoting the skills of reading, writing, speaking and listening. Some of the texts that we use in literacy lessons have religious themes or content, which encourage discussion, and this promotes the skills of speaking and listening. Children write and learn material for collective worship. We also encourage the children to write letters and record information in different ways to increase creativity and to develop their writing ability.

Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE)

Through our Religious Education lessons, we teach the children about the values and moral beliefs that underpin individual choices of behaviour. So, for example, we contribute to the discussion of topics such as smoking, drugs, health education, love and relationships. 'A Journey in Love' is the basis of Relationships and Sex Education (RSE). We also promote the values and attitudes required for citizenship in a democracy by teaching respect for others and the need for personal responsibility. In general, by promoting tolerance and understanding of other people, we enable children to appreciate what it means to be positive members of our pluralistic society. Our monthly virtues enable all the school to focus on one particular aspect of their social and emotional learning.

Catholic Social Teaching

In our addition to our use of Come and See and the new RED, we also discreetly teach children about the principles of Catholic Social Teaching. Though these principles are reflected upon and used in weekly RE lessons, we also teach them each half term using the Rooted in Love curriculum, which has been designed by Caritas. We teach each of the principles and timetable additional time to the effective teaching of these.

Spiritual, Moral, Social and Cultural Development

Through teaching Religious Education in our school, we provide opportunities for spiritual development. Children consider and respond to the 'Big Questions' concerning the meaning and purpose of life. We help them to recognise the difference between right and wrong through the study of moral and ethical questions. Children explore issues of religious faith and values and through this and they develop their knowledge and understanding of the cultural context of their own lives.

Religious Education for Children with Special Needs or More Able Children

In our school we teach RE to all children, whatever their ability. The teaching of RE is a vital part of our school curriculum policy. When teaching RE, we ensure that we provide learning opportunities matched to the needs of individual children; adult support and scaffolding are provided as necessary. Children who are more able in RE are given opportunities to develop higher order thinking skills, linking their knowledge to how they can live this out in every-day life. Religious Education is not an isolated subject and all classes make curriculum links with RE and other subjects such as art, music, drama or science. Our school participates in religious celebrations and visits.

Assessment and Recording

We assess children's work in Religious Education by making informal judgements as we observe them during lessons. We provide formative feedback to influence and review planning as a topic is being taught. Each child completes an assessed piece each term, which is in turn, levelled by the teacher; these are also moderated by other staff and by the Nottingham Diocese RE Advisor.

On completion of a unit of work, we make summative judgements about the work of each pupil in relation to their end-of-year expectations. We record the child's attainment each term on Arbor.

Our feedback includes 'hearts' and 'clouds' which are designed to further deepen or extend understanding. Children use their blue pens to respond to this feedback.

Respond and Encounter tasks are used at the end of each four-week topic to reflect on learning throughout the unit of work.

Resources

Come and See is used to plan teaching and learning. We have sufficient resources in our school to be able to teach all our Religious Education teaching units and other Liturgical feasts and seasons. We keep the majority of resources for Religious Education in individual classrooms at age-appropriate levels. Each class has RE text books, candles and artefacts to be used at different times in the Liturgical year. We try to visit St Mary's Church when possible to celebrate mass.

Staff and Governor Training

Our school works closely with the Diocesan Advisor, who provides a regular range of training for both staff and updates for Governors. All new members of staff attend a training course on 'Teachers new to Catholic Schools'. Our Advisor provides support in both regular observations and bespoke training according to our needs. Please see School Development Plan for further details.

Monitoring and Review

The RE Subject Leaders, James Leech, is responsible for monitoring the standards of the children's work and the quality of the teaching in Religious Education. They are also responsible for supporting colleagues in the teaching of Religious Education, advising on Assemblies, Catholic life, Collective Act of Worship and Liturgies. The Subject Leaders are also responsible for providing a strategic lead and direction for the subject in the school.

We also have a Prayer and Liturgy Coordinator. Emili Coburn has taken on this role and she is developing her awareness and confidence in leadership of RE and CLM.

The RE Link-Governor, Mrs Margaret Eames, meets regularly with the RE Subject Leader to review progress.
